Inspiration of the Week

An Australian zookeeper took home monkeys, pandas, and a tiger in order to keep them safe from bushfires.

“ An Australian zoo was able to save all of its animals facing threat of bushfires thanks to a zookeeper who sheltered monkeys, pandas, and even a tiger in his home.

The Mogo Wildlife Park is located along the South Coast of New South Wales, Australia and is just 10 minutes from Bateman's Bay, a popular tourist area that has been severely impacted by bushfires. The fires roaring from Bateman's Bay down through the South Coast have prompted thousands of people to evacuate and have left at least seven people dead, according to the New South Wales Police. “
