“Since the COVID-19 outbreak, we have witnessed a big shift in attitude, our economy, and our public routine. Social distancing regulations and this forced break, compromised our buying ability that made many of us re-examine our consumer priorities, as well as allowing space for influential leaders and companies to focus on the more pressing global and climate issues at stake. All of these nuanced changes will ultimately shape-shift our culture and carve a new normal for our lives in the way we relate to businesses, sustainability, and lifestyle.“

- 95% of the expected future urban growth will occur in cities of the developing world
- 90% of the 1.24 million global road accident deaths happen in low and middle income countries and up to 75% of the deaths in urban areas are to the poorest—pedestrians and cyclists!
